AFFECTS 8,000

An Order to Stop All Freight Trains on Sunday Hereafter.

The Lake Eric Follows the Example Set by the D., L. & W .- Tonnage Business Here Shows an Improvement.

The New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad has decided to follow the example of the New York Central and Delaware. Lackawanna & Western railways and suspend operations in the freight service as far as possible. The company has issued an order to hold all common freight trains in the yards from 12 o'clock on Saturday night to 12 o'clock Sunday night every week in the year. The order went into effect Saturday at midnight, and nearly all the railroad men handling freight on the New York, Lake Erie & Western, New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio and Chicago & Erie were given a day off. Only the necessary crews to handle fast freight and perishable freight will be kept at work. The passenger service will also be cut down so that the station agents and telegraph operators may get a few extra hours' rest on Sunday. The order affects nearly eight thousand men, half of whom will get a day's rest, the other half being compelled to work for two or three hours on Sunday.

Increase in Freight Traffic.

The official train records show that in the week ending March 3 there were received and forwarded at Indianapolis 1,472 more loaded cars than in the week ending Feb. 27, but, making comparison with the corresponding week of 1893, the exhibit is by no means so favorable. Yet it can be said that at the corresponding period last year the loaded car movement was phenomenally heavy, the roads not then having really felt the depression, and in March last year the shipments of exhibits to the world's fair cut an important figure; so, summing the matter up, freight men have some grounds for encouragement. The business of this week, judging from the calls for cars, promises a still further increase. The improvement in business last week was largely in through traffle, and in shipments of grain and live stock a large per cent. of it for export; shipments of cereal products and flour were large for this season of the year. While export busines is fully appreciated, there is a feeling with freight men who study the situation that this is business of a spasmodic character and handled at very low rates. As Oscar Murray, freight traffic manager of the Big Four lines, puts it, "What freight men want to see is the manufactories starting up all over the country, as this means business which will stay by a road and traffic which it pays well to move." While through business east bound shows the most marked improvement, it is noticeable that west-bound shipments of the higher class freights and heavy groceries are heavier, and, were lower-class freights, such as glass, iron structural work and railroad supplies, moving in the usual vol-ume, west-bound business would be well up with that of the average in March. In local business there has certainly been some Improvement of late. There is a perceptible increased activity about the city freight depots and on the loading and unloading tracks, but not until there is more business in progress with local industries can it be expected that traffic will be up to the usual standard from week to week. Bellw is given the number of cars received and forwarded at this point for the week ending March 3, as compared with the corresponding week of the two preceding years: Name of road. 1894. 1893. 1892. Railroad Earnings.

The Big Four, in the third week of February earned $216.281, a decrease this year as compared with the same week of 1893 of $22,558. The official report for January shows earnings to have been as follows:

| Earnings 940,211 Expenses 709,869 | $1,006,760 $06,549 $71,099 $ 161,230 |
|--|---|
| Net 230,342 Surplus 4,445 Since July 1. 1893-94. Earnings $8,056,942 Expenses 6,053,090 | 80,945 *85,390 1892-93. $9,002,880 $945,938 |
| Net $2,003,852 Surplus 414,305 *Increase, Deficit. | |

The capacity of the railroads for re-trenchment is surprising, and was never better illustrated than in the case of the Pennsylvania railroad for January, which statement showed a reduction of $871,000 in operating expenses that month. This is a net gain of $11,4000, when compared with January, 1893. This applies to lines east of Pittsburg. On lines west of that point the gross earnings in January decreased $425,911; operating expenses, $414,999.

Out-bound traffic with the Lake Erie & Western is improving. Last week the road took out of Indianapolis 320, against 216 loaded cars brought in.

Live stock traffic with all lines was quite heavy last week. The Vandalia brought in 144 cars of stock, and the Peorla & Eastera and the St. Louis division of the Big Four made heavy deliveries at the Indianapolis yards. The Louisville division of the Pennsylvania lines handled at Indianapolis last week more cars than in any week in the last eight months, bringing in 405 and forwarding 645 loaded cars, an increase over the week ending Feb. 27 of 476 loaded cars. The loaded-car movement with the Vandalia is so equal in both directions as to excite comment, the road last week bringing in 908, against 928 forwarded west. Last week the road handled at this point 513 fewer loaded cars than in the corresponding week of 1893.

The four divisions of the Pennsylvania. lines each did more business at this point last week than in the preceding week, handling at this point 741 more loaded cars than in the week ending Feb. 27; but when compared with the corresponding week of 1893 there were this year 984 fewer cars

There is still a large movement westward of empty cars. Last week 456 empties were sent west over the St. Louis division of the Big Four, 622 over the Chicago division. $20 over the Peoria division, and the Vandalla hauled west 498 empty cars. At Kan-kakee and some other points the demand for empty cars is in excess of the supply.

The Big Four lines proper handled at this point last week 7,109 loaded cars, which was 76 fewer than in the week ending Feb. 27. However, if the business of the Peoria Eastern is included, an increase of 228 loaded cars is shown, as the P. & E. lines handled at this point last week 304 more loaded cars than in the week ending Feb.

Business is improving somewhat with the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, but is badly off as compared with the correspond-Ing period of 1893. Last year the C., H. & D. handled at Indianapolis 1,194 loaded cars, or 541 more than last week, yet the business of the week ending March 3 this year was 42 loaded cars in excess of the preceding week.

Personal, Local and General Notes. The passenger business of the Peoria &

Benjamin McKeen, superintendent of the Peoria division of the Vandalia, proposes, this year, to reduce the grades on that road to such an extent that one engine can haul twenty-five to thirty loaded cars over it. Neither the track nor the grades, when the Vandalia took hold of the property, was such that one engine could haul safely over it twenty loaded cars.

The oldest passenger men say they do not remember a time when travel to Chicago was as light as at present. One train a day, say, the trunk line officials, would carry all the Chicago business out of New York. In this connection it can be said that between St. Louis and the East the Vandalia and the Big Four lines are carrying 100 per cent. more people than at the corresponding period last year.

In addition to the new work the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago has in its shops at Fort Wayne, nineteen engines for repairs. On such a system as the Pennsylvania lines, says an official, reducing numbers of workmen and number of working hours, in the end, saves nothing; it only defers the repair work, and, in case busi-ness improves suddenly, is an injury to the company's business.

The Pittsburg locomotive works have recently delivered to the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis some passenger engines of the same type as the ten-wheel passenger engine of the Vandalia which was exhibited at the world's fair. These engines weigh 129,000 pounds, ninety-nine thousand pounds resting on the six driving wheels. These engines are to be put in service hauling passenger trains of the road over the Ozark mountains of southern Missouri.

LAID HANDS ON SPIRITS.

Claim of a Lorraine Hall Spiritualist-"Kid" Spirits.

The Lorraine Hall school of spiritualists were addressed, last night, by Mrs. Dr. Ada Sheehan. She is a middle-aged woman. Her address last night took a wide range and she scored "alleged" spiritualistic mediums, admitting there were impostors, as severely as she praised what she termed "true mediums." She said she had often been accused of being a nonbeliever in mediums, because she had presumed to say that some were frauds. She did not believe in the spirits that would strike one dead if the "one" should presume to touch the spirit. Her reason for this nonbelief was that she believed the spirits to have returned to the material world for the purpose of proving to the doubter and skeptic that they really lived in the spirit world and could return. Mrs. Dr. Sheehan said she always touched the spirits when she could. The she branched off into a sort of semi-political pessimistic view of things in general and took occasion to announce that justice was purchasable and all elections dishonest in this day, the whole of which she attributed to the fact that all people were not, and had not, for years, been spiritualists. She said spiritualism would solve all the perplexing problems of religion, politics, labor, etc. She said the devil -"ignorance"- which now has possession of the people was a much viler and meaner one than he that would get them hereafter, or who they feared would get them. In her concluding remarks she said it was arrant nonsense to say that if we were good we were sure of heaven.

She then announced that she would attempt a few character readings and forestalled the effect of failure by saying that sometimes she could read character and sometimes she could not. She called for those who desired their traits of character exposed to raise their hands and she would try and satisfy them. They were as follows: First character-Proud. Hampered by circumstances in life. Required energy to attain present position. Possessed executive ability. Positive and great force of conviction. Brook no interference with plans nor refusal to obey orders. Learn rapidly. Desire to travel. Tastes strong and peculiar, extravagant. Second Character-There is present a feeling of trouble. Had more of trouble than pleasure in life. In early life duties heavy and others pressed you for aid and comfort. Very early life altered by death. From the

NO HOPE FOR ROBY.

The Governor Gives a Straight Talk to a Delegation.

A delegation of Lake county men came to Indianapolis last week, and, without registering at a hotel, went direct to the Governor's office, where the members had quite a little talk with the executive. Several of them represented that they were stockholders in the Roby race course, and asked that their business suffer no interference until the association's charter expired, some time in May. They eloquently set out the claim that, by hiring a few constables and carrying a pay roll, they were to be considered great benefactors to Lake county. The gentlemen met a rather chilly reception from the Governor, who listened to a great deal they had to say, but gave them little satisfaction, insisting that winter racing was exceedingly cruel to animals and dangerous to public policy, and that he believed the race track was kept open for the sole benefit of the pool rooms. He said he would continue to urge the Lake county officials to suppress the disgrace to the State, and that if they felt unable to cope with it they could expect any assistance that the State authorities might lawfully furnish. The Lake county people returned home the same day they came.

The winter racing at Roby has been continued since last fall without abatement, blizzards and snowdrifts having no terrors for these gamblers. The Lake county grand jury is now investigating gambling schemes and will probably report indictments to-day

Rosebery Succeeds Gladstone. LONDON, March 3 .- Hon. William Evart Gladstone, long known as England's grand old man, to-day formally tendered his resignation as Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury and Lord Privy Seal. The tender was made to her Majesty, Queen Victoria, at Windsor Castle, where the Premier spent last night and to-day. This evening it was officially announced that the Queen had accepted the resignation of Mr. Gladstone, and that her Majesty had summoned Lord Rosebery and offered him the post of Prime Minister in Gladstone's stead. It was further officially announced that Lord Rosebery had accepted the po-

It is understood that Mr. Edward Majoribanks, the chief Liberal whip, to whom the Radical deputation, headed by Mr. Henry Labouchere, protested against the succession of Lord Rosebery to the premiership, has replied to the protestants, addressing his reply to Mr. Henry Labouchere. Mr. Majoribanks submitted the protest to the Ministers, and his reply is said to have been couched in conciliatory language, his very evident purpose being to prevent, if possible, the threatened defection of the friends present. An informal reception was Radicals. At the time the deputation called given the bishop at the church this even-upon Mr. Majoribanks, Mr. Labouchere, ing. The Mandolin Club, composed of Harry who spoke in the name of the Radical party, declared his opposition to the selection of a successor to Mr. Gladstone from the House of Lords, and said that if the new Prime Minister was not taken from the House of Commons, the Radicals, who practically hold the balance of power, would desert the government. Whether this threat can be carried into effect is somewhat a matter of conjecture, but it is thoroughly well known that Mr. Labouchere, who is not at all a lover of the peerage, will do all in his power to withdraw the Radical support from a Rosebery Cabinet. Mr. Majoribanks's letter, it is understood, is, while conciliatory, intended to strengthen in the government's favor whoever may be wavering in the Radical ranks.

"It is freely asserted to-night that Lord Rosebery and the Liberal party will have to face a grave crisis after the retirement of Mr. Gladstone. In addition to the strong objection that is entertained by a large section of the new Radical party to the selection of a peer as a successor to Mr. Gladstone, there is a feeling of soreness among the more moderate Libereals at the cavaller manner in which Mr. Gladstone had treated his colleagues in the matter of his resignation. This soreness is expressed in a variety of ways, and wherever the members of any section of the Gladstonians have met there has been some exhibit of resentment at the secretiveness of their leader in witholding from the party an intimation of his intention to yield up the seals of office. In common courtesy and common fairness to his supporters, it is declared, he should, before having taken so decisive a step, called the party together and favored them with the reasons for his relinquishment of the leadership of the party at a critical time. This feeling and the question that has been separately raised by Mr. Labouchere, anent the selection of a peer as the successor of Mr. Gladstone, have combined to place the Gladstonians of every shade of opinion in a very bitter frame of mind. The leaders of the party, however, scoff the idea that there will be any general revolt. They say that Lord Rosebery's accession to the premiership will be cheerfully acquiesced in by all but a small faction of the party. More important to the great bulk of the Liberal party than the action of Mr. Labouchere is the attitude of the anti-Parnellite party, which undoubtedly will have the power to turn the Ministry cut of office any day they choose. It is believed that communications have passed between members of the government and the leaders of be the chief aim of the government.

He considered that he was acting as an individual, and not as an official. He entered a general denial of charges that he was interested beneficially in the National Lithographing Company, that he knew beforehand that Mr. Seymour was to be appointed Commissioner, and that he had sought to secure work in the department for the National Company in April of last year. Horate Kenney, a personal and po-litical friend of his, had discussed the work of lithographing for the Patent Office with him. He asked him (Quincy) to secure information for him as to the work with a view to bidding and securing the work from the present company. Mr. Quiney related circumstances of several conversations he had with Commissioner Seymour on the subject and his introduction of Mr. Kenney to the Commissioner. It had not occurred to him that it was inconsistent with his position in the State Department to make such a recommendation to an

C., March 3 .- The President has gone still further South and is probably at the end of his trip, and may even now be on his homeward way. The Violet to-day hoisted her anchor in Croatan Sound and, heading south and east, steamed into Pimlico Sound. The vessel then stood along the east coast, passing Bodies island lighthouse, a conspicuous object for many miles, with its alternate black and white stripes, and soon came in sight of Hatteras light, A landing was made on the cape and the party made another attempt upon the game, which at this point presented a greater variety than had yet been encountered, for, in addition to the water fowl which had been met in the upper sounds, the Hatteras country boasts of rabbits, red deer and other land game. The President was much interested in the country, which differs widely from the upper coast. Just be-fore Hatteras is reached, the low, narrow sand spit, varied by a few dunes almost barren of any trace of vegetation, spreads out to the width of a few miles and is luxuriously clothed in vegetation, with many live oaks, sand cactus, thickets and cane brakes. Many fresh ponds lie hidden in the jungle connected by deep but narrow streams abounding with fish. The place is out of the way of all traffic, and little news of the doings of the party is likely to reach the outside world as long as it remains Wrestler Kicked by a Second. CINCINNATI, March 3.-The wrestling match at the People's Theater to-night almost ended in a tragedy. Frank Trickler and Bert Walker, between whom there was considerable ill feeling, wrestled three bouts, mixed style. Walker won the first, Graeco-Roman, in six minutes and Trickler took the catch-as-catch-can in twelve and a half minutes. Trickler got the strangle hold, which was barred, and the referee gave the decision to Walker. Before the men could rise, however, one of Walker's seconds named Dooley ran out on the mat and kicked Trickler behind the ear, stretching him senseless on the floor. Trickler recovered in a few minutes and did not seem to be seriously hurt.

Gentlewoman. I was dining out the other day, and was taken down to dinner by an intelligent person, who (as soon as we were seated and had unfolded our napkins and studied our menus) quietly asked: "Pray, what is your favorite hobby?" Taken thus abruptly. I had not time to invent a suitable and unveracious answer, and was, therefore, startled into a truthful reply: "The poetry, writings and designs of William Blake," "Mine," he answered, calmly, "is the iron work of Quentin Matsys; so, if you will talk through soup and fish about Blake, then I will talk about Quentin Matsys through the two entries, and then we can start fair." I thought this was a splendid plan, and heartily recommend it to all diners out who suffer from a desire to talk about their favorite crank.

Graphic Account of a Dramatic Scene.

Coosa River News. "Guilty or not guilty?" were the words that flew from 'Squire Stone's lips as Mr. Sol Smith stepped into the court room with an overgrown black son of Father Adam's race in one hand and a south side of a hog that looked as if a bolt of double-strength lightning had knocked all the lean out of it in the other. "Sah?" was the reply. "Mack Williamson, did you steal that camp will be summarily expelled. All "Mack Williamson, did you steal that newspaper men, members of the order, con- ham?" asked the judge, stamping his foot. Young Wives_

'Yes, sah," he replied, looking as innocent as Mary's little lamb. "Well, then," said the Judge, spitting and looking toward Coalburg, "I will give you three months. Hope you a safe journey and a happy stay. I will now hand you over to Tom Hamp-

Grief Books and Gift Books. Jessie M. Burgoyne, in Donahoe's Maga-

There is a certain morbid sentiment among women which is admired and cultivated by many of us who are otherwise sufficiently strong minded. I mean a fondness for a peculiar type of poetry and those ter-rible little books which are sent by all one's friends the moment a bereavement or other trouble occurs. I have known a case where seventeen of these little volumes were received by a mourner within two weeks. The donors had drawn heavy pencil marks around all the most harrowing passages, so that by no chance could they be overlooked; and over those books were spent hours and hours of weeping, that certainly did not make the loss any easier to

Nor are mourners the only women who indulge themselves in this way. The very happiest of women will treasure scraps of verses from the newspapers descriptive of the most heartrending sorrow, and make themselves cry over them with real enjoyment. I knew a husband who sent his wife that most objectionable poem, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, beginning:

"The hour shall come when one of us shall hearken In vain to hear a voice that has gone And morns shall dawn, noons fade, and shadows darken, While sad eyes watch for feet that never come." She fairly reveled in that during the six years of her exceptionally happy married life. Her husband carried a copy in his prayer book, and married again within a year after her death.

What I desire to emphasize is that women do themselves a great deal of harm by indulging this morbid sentiment. It takes the place of wiser, more healthful thoughts and condolence. It is exactly as pernicious as is reading medical books, a study of which will convince nervous persons that they have every disease therein described. There is more comfort in a verse of Scripture, a warm hand clasp and half an hour's hard work than in a shelf full of the morbid little volumes. As for the verses, instead of reading and crying over them, men and women would better be laying in a good stock of happy, wholesome ideas and thoughts, to help them bear the troubles when they actually do come.

He Was On.

Detroit Free Press. They had been guying a mountain member of the Kentucky Legislature about the brand of grammar he used until he was sick of it. One day a clerk brought him a written petition of some kind to give an opinion on. "Would you say that was all right?" inquired the clerk, spreading it before him. "No," he said sharply, as he glanced over it. "I'd say it was all wrote," and the clerk
